CHIDIEBERE UDOGWU

ABOUT

Chidiebere Udogwu is a Nigerian-American fine artist based in Atlanta, Georgia. Originally from Columbia, South Carolina, his multidisciplinary practice spans canvas, custom garments, 3D sculpture, and found objects. Guided by vivid dreams and informed by his Igbo heritage, Udogwu's work investigates identity, symbolism, and the construction of meaning through visual form.

His visual language bridges figuration and abstraction, often featuring exaggerated features and recurring motifs such as disembodied lips. A restrained black-and-white palette and the use of bold typographic interventions extend his aesthetic beyond the canvas into lived identity, blurring the boundary between artwork and persona.

Through a synthesis of art, fashion, and narrative, Udogwu constructs a symbolic world that reflects introspection and cultural memory. His work has been featured in collaborations with Lyrical Lemonade, On The Radar, and Barriers Worldwide, and his pieces have been worn by artists including Nino Paid, Veeze, and Warhol —underscoring his ability to bridge fine art and contemporary culture.
